Two Principals In McCarthy-Army Row May Be Eliminated

Hensel, Carr May Be Taken Out Of Case

By Jack Bell

Washington (AP) — Sens. Potter (R-Mich.) and Jackson (D-Wash.) said yesterday they would have no objection to eliminating two principals in the Army-McCarthy dispute, one on either side, but they believe Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Roy M. Cohn should testify fully in their own behalf.

Potter and Jackson said in separate interviews they do not believe Asst. Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel, an Army principal, or Francis P. Carr, McCarthy's chief of staff, has been linked closely with charges on which the Senate Investigations subcommittee will resume televised hearings today at 10 a. m. (EDT.).

"I would have no objection if Hensel and Carr were eliminated as principals," Potter said. "But I think McCarthy and Cohn would want to testify in their own behalf."

McCarthy said over the weekend that "of course I will be available to testify at any time."

As for his aides, Cohn and Carr, McCarthy said: "I shall advise my staff to testify if they are called upon, but I will not order them to testify."

Jackson said the case against Hensel and Carr thus far has been "most inconclusive." He added, however, that the committee ought to wait until the Army's case is in and some decision is made on whether to admit monitored telephone calls into evidence before any final disposition is made of charges against them.

If nothing new develops, Jackson said he thinks Hensel and Carr might be dismissed then. Secretary of the Army Stevens has charged McCarthy, Carr, and Cohn, who is McCarthy's chief counsel, with exerting undue pressure in attempts to get favored treatment in the Army for Pvt. G. David Schine, a former non-salaried consultant in McCarthy's Communist probes.

McCarthy has replied with charges that Stevens and his aides tried to use Schine as a "hostage" in alleged efforts to sidetrack an investigation of Communists in the Army.

The Wisconsin senator accused Hensel of ramrodding the charges against him, but after President Eisenhower barred testimony about a Jan. 21 meeting of administration leaders at which the charges were discussed, McCarthy said he might have been mistaken.

Stevens is scheduled to take the stand at today's resumption of the hearings to swear that the Army had sole responsibility for making the charges against McCarthy, and that they were not inspired by other administration officials.

This may lay him open to cross examination by McCarthy on what he may have heard about the Jan. 21 meeting, at which Stevens himself was not present. Those attending included Atty. Gen. Brownell, Sherman Adams, White House chief of staff, and Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Army Counselor John G. Adams, enjoin by the President's order from further testimony about the meeting, already has told the subcommittee that Sherman Adams suggested preparation of a written report on the Schine incidents. The Army's formal charges grew out of such a report.

McCarthy, contending the President's order presented his side with a "stacked deck," previously had indicated he would advise Cohn and Carr not to testify because of it.

End Of Segregation As Policy Inevitable, And Can't Be Justified On Any Grounds, Tennessee Woman Says

By Mrs. Roberta Westbrook

"The end of segregation as a policy is inevitable," said Miss Ella V. Ross, who has been closely connected with education in Tennessee, and continued firmly, "We cannot justify segregation on any grounds."

However, she was not so firm in her opinion as to the wisdom of the timing of the Supreme Court decision last week, which, in effect, would end segregated schools in all sections of the country. She admitted readily that the decision, coming just at this time, was sound, "very sound" in its international effects.

Its effect on the Southern states, however, is problematical, she said, and will vary with conditions in each state. In eastern Tennessee, for instance, where she is dean of women and head of the English department at East Tennessee State College in Johnson City, she does not foresee any great difficulty.

"We have been anticipating such a decision," she said, "and have been working to be ready for it."

She told of a luncheon with Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee last week, when the problem was thoroughly discussed. One difficulty in Tennessee is that the state constitution specifically forbids mixed schools. At present, the plan is to wait for the hearings in the Fall and the interpretations of the decision which will be made clearer at that time. The state then plans to revise its constitution to conform to the decision.

However, the legal problems in the South will be much easier to work out than the emotional problems aroused by the decision, she said.

Asked whether Gov. Herman Tamm of Georgia, in his outspoken defiance of the decision and the plans in that state to abandon public education rather than conform, spoke for the South as a whole, she answered carefully, "He speaks for a certain group of Southerners."

This group, she pointed out, has its own problems. Centered largely in such states as Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi, where the negro population outnumbers the white, these advocates of white supremacy represent the minority group and are controlled by a great fear. In relaxing their segregation policy, they fear that they will be handing control of the whole state over to the negroes who are not prepared, in education or emotional maturity, to administer it.

The reasons for this lack of education and emotional maturity, is not entirely the fault of the Southern whites, she said. The whites of these states, as well as the negroes, are still suffering from the evils of the Reconstruction Period which followed the War Between the States.

When told of the report that Gov. Tamm had cut off the flood of critical telephone calls from the North which followed his recent public criticism with instructions to tell callers that he was "too busy recruiting the Army of the Confederacy," Miss Ross laughed.

"I doubt if it will come to that," she said, "but few people in the North realize the feeling of bitterness which still dominates the Southern thinking, because of the humiliation, the wreckage of their lives and family fortunes left by the Reconstruction Administration."

"If Abraham Lincoln had lived to enforce his ideal of 'with malice toward none, with charity toward all,' segregation would not now be a problem in the South. It would have been solved in the early post-war years, and without legal pressure."

"It is because the white people of the South have been on the defensive that they have clung to the policy of segregation so long," she said.

"That is why there is a question in my mind as to the timing of the decision," she said. "Actually, and it is hard to realize this in the North where the Civil War and its effects have long been forgotten, the South is only now in the last stages of the Reconstruction phase."

"Only within the last ten years (Continued on Page two)

Ella V. Ross Is Authority On Segregation

Miss Ella V. Ross of Johnson City, Tennessee, was the ranking official at the convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of the Business and Professional Woman's Club held at Buck Hill Inn, representing the National Federation. Her opinions on the historic decision rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States last week regarding segregated schools, were sought by The Daily Record in a special interview reported here.

Miss Ross could speak both as a leading educator in the South and as a clubwoman. She has served as National Chairman of Education and Vocations, 1950-52 of the BPWC. She is Dean of Women and head of the Department of English at the East Tennessee State College.

She was chosen as Woman of the Year in Johnson City, toured the state in the interests of Constitutional Revision, is a member of the State Textbook Commission and of the State Committee of the Southern Association for the revision of elementary schools.

Miss Ross has a B.S. degree from East Tennessee State College, an M.A. from Duke University and has an M. Ed. and has completed residence requirements for her D. Ed. from Harvard University.

Walter Turns Bypass To Defense Dept.

Rep. Francis E. Walter, D., Easton has turned the Ninth & Main St. bypass issue over to federal authorities "in view of the fact that the Federal Government is interested in facilities that cannot be interfered with in the event of emergency."

In a letter to J. L. Kerlin, chairman of the committee of Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association, Mr. Walter said:

"I have taken this matter up with the Federal Commissioner of Federal Roads requesting that he examine it and make appropriate recommendations."

"I shall also bring this matter to the attention of the Defense establishment and respectfully suggest that you call upon the authorities at the Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot so that they may be in a position to take appropriate steps in fulfillment of the Defense Department's mission," Mr. Walter advised.

The Congressman said he had transmitted the resolution of the Businessmen against the Ninth & Main St. bypass to the Bureau of Public Roads.

Mr. Walter gave Mr. Kerlin assurance that "I will do everything within my power to be of assistance."

Indian Mediator Opens Talk With East-West Conferees

Geneva (AP) — Uninvited but eager, a potential Indian mediator opened talks with East and West here yesterday as participants in the Geneva conference neared a showdown on the eight-year-long conflict in Indochina.

Acting as special envoy for Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, Krishna Menon, India's delegate to the conference, scene his government's suggestion that both the Korea and Indochina problems should be settled through some form of coalition of federation of opposing regimes.

With the first practical discussion of an Indochina settlement coming up, Western sources said this week would show whether the Communists mean business, or are merely stalling for new military gains in the field.

Western political developments, meanwhile, indicated that definite steps toward a Southeast Asian defense alliance may be forthcoming.

The Indian diplomat said French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden Saturday in Paris. He saw Red Chinese Foreign Minister Chou En-lai yesterday and also had appointments to confer with Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and United States Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith.

Menon's ideas were believed to be based on proposals advanced last week by Nehru in a foreign policy speech. Nehru urged a loose union of Communist and anti-Communist factions in Korea and Indochina, with full unification to be worked out gradually in each case.

Under Nehru's plan, the rival regimes would exist side by side, benefit from trade.

Fire Destroys Kresgeville Summer Home

Kresgeville—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed a summer home one and a half miles north of here yesterday.

Estimated loss in the fire was $6,000 according to William George, 51, Aquaschicola, owner of the property. The home burned to the ground between noon and 1:30 p.m., according to local firemen.

George and his wife had spent Saturday night in the home. It was completed for Summer occupancy last Fall. The building contained two bedrooms, a bath, a kitchen and a livingroom, the owner said.

The owner and his wife, Eva, had come to the Summer home Saturday afternoon with the intention of spending the week-end there. After staying overnight Saturday, the couple left at "about 11 a.m." yesterday to drive to Lehighton.

When they returned to Kresgeville at "about 2:15 p.m." yesterday, they learned about the fire from Folk Township firemen. An alarm notifying Trachsville firemen of the blaze had been turned in shortly after noon.

George said the building was a "total loss." Trees in the immediate vicinity were also damaged by the fire, the owner indicated.

Firemen from Trachsville and other West End companies arrived on the scene too late to save the property, a fireman said; spent most of their time trying to prevent the fire from spreading to the surrounding woods.

Registration Drive Opened By Democrats

Harrisburg (AP) — The Democratic party of Pennsylvania begins a statewide registration drive today with James A. Finnegan, president of the Philadelphia city council, directing it.

Finnegan's appointment was announced by Maurice Spalain Jr., Democratic state chairman. In making the appointment Spalain said that Finnegan has had outstanding success in recent Philadelphia registration drives.

"Registrations have dropped considerably since 1952 and there are only about 75 per cent of the eligible voters in Pennsylvania registered," Spalain added.

Finnegan accepted the appointment with the comment, "It has always been my experience that an election is won or lost in the registration drive."

Assessment Of Dien Bien Phu Loss Made

Saigon, Indochina (AP) — The military situation in Indochina has been subjected to close and sober scrutiny by French and American military men this past week in an attempt to assess the full effect of the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

The examination was carried out by Gen. Paul Ely, chief of staff of the French army, on one side and American Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel on the other.

It is inexact to describe these studies as a post-mortem on Dien Bien Phu. It is more like a medical consultation to determine what can be done to cure a patient stricken by a localized disease.

The French and Americans are inclined to view Indochina as very much alive even though in need of preventive medicine.

Gen. Ely, who brought a former Indochina commander, Gen. Raoul Salan, to Saigon with him, is returning to Paris to make his findings available to a French-American conference scheduled to open early in June.

Gen. O'Daniel, whose chief concern is the billion dollar U. S. aid program, left Saturday for Manila to confer with touring Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson on the possibility of increasing or modifying American assistance in view of the changed military situation.

That the situation has changed the French concede. Since the collapse of Dien Bien Phu two weeks ago the French are minus some 12,000 elite fighting men and Vietnamese Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap has lost an estimated 18,000.

That would seem to indicate the French came off at least numerically better, but French losses were painful and officers have asked reinforcements.

But the most salient fact to emerge from Dien Bien Phu, as Gen. Henri Navarre, the French supreme commander, observed, was not that many men were lost on both sides but that the Red-led rebels now have weapons they never had before.

Extradition Not Possible Now Against Capt. J.M. Leech

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — U. S. Chief Prosecutor Thomas Lancia announced last night the evidence in the slaying of three American officers in 1946 is "not in its present form legally sufficient" for a request to extradite former Army Capt. James M. Leech, of Lima, Ohio.

Leech was accused last Friday, by Lancia's deputy, of the ax-murder of the three officers at Passau, Germany, in January, 1946.

Leech has denied the charges.

After plowing through the file of the eight-year-old murder case, Lancia said in a statement: "Although the evidence in this triple homicide is sufficient for the issuance of an arrest warrant, it is not in its present form legally sufficient for an extradition request."

"It appears that my office will therefore not be in a position to forward the case to the U. S. high commissioner for at least three weeks."

The charges against Leech were filed by Deputy U. S. Prosecutor William Canfield, of Hampden, Mass., after the Army had turned over the files of the case to U. S. High Commission legal authorities a few weeks ago.

The three victims in the slaying were Maj. Everett S. Cofran, of Washington, D. C., Capt. Adrian L. Wessler, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and 1st Lt. Stanley M. Rosewater, of Omaha, Neb. Canfield contends that Leech, a deputy to Cofran, killed the three officers with an ax and then set their house afire with gasoline.

Chief Atty. Lancia, of Boston, Mass., announced yesterday extradition of Leech would not be sought until he had made a "full study of the case." Lancia was in Bremen prosecuting a bribery case when Canfield announced the charges here against Leech on Friday.

Canfield is due to return to the United States in two weeks. It would be Lancia's task to prosecute the triple-murder case if it ever comes to trial in an American occupation court.

Segregation Unjustifiable Under Any Circumstances

has the South started to emerge from the backwater into which it was forced by events following the Civil War."

Within the past ten years, she pointed out, there has been a 26 per cent gain in industry, and with industry has come an expanding economy. Ten years ago, she said, the names in the South were all the old Anglo-Saxon names. With industry has come peoples of all national heritages, and at long last the white population is increasing faster than the negro population.

Within another generation, the South, itself, would have so changed that the problems of segregation would have solved themselves, she predicted.

"Will this decision and the legal pressure hasten the process?" she was asked.

"It may. It very well may," she admitted, pointing to the fact that the repeal of the Jim Crow laws on travel in the South have been accomplished without any furor or violence.

Negro students, she said, have been admitted to the law school of the University of Tennessee following an earlier Supreme Court decision. Several applications for admission of negroes to her own Tennessee State College have been deferred, awaiting the present Supreme Court decision.

"Actually, I feel sure that if a negro were to make application for our summer school session right now, he would be accepted without question, and would fit into the school program without notice," she said.

"We have seen this coming, and just this year circulated a questionnaire among our own students about whether they would have any objection to the admission of negroes to their classes. There was not a single objection registered. In fact some of our students were very much in favor of admission of qualified negro students."

"Of course, the problem on the college and graduate level can never be as serious as in the elementary schools," she said.

"Among educated Southerners, both negro and white, there is general agreement."

In isolated communities, particularly among the "poor whites" there may be some violence, she fears.

"Everybody kicks the poor whites around," she said, and they feel themselves superior only to the negroes. With that distinction removed, they will be at the bottom, and they will resent it and express that resentment in the future."

Tennessee has, in fact, comparable schools, she said, so that the problems of non-segregation will not be so formidable. Other states are not so fortunate. Mississippi, for instance, has been bankrupting itself to provide comparable schools for negroes trying with "equal but separate" schools to stave off non-segregation and will be interested to know what effect this program will have on that state.

Even in Tennessee, however, it will not be all gain, she said, and pointed to the problem of the negro teachers. All the negro schools are staffed by negro teachers who may find it difficult to teach in mixed schools.

"Are the negro teachers qualified to teach in mixed schools?" she was asked.

"Oh, yes. As a matter of fact, the negro teachers in Johnson City are better qualified, and better paid, I might add, than the white teachers. This is because we have a single salary scale with increments for advanced degrees. Practically all of the negro teachers hold masters degrees," she said, which is not true of the white teacher in the public school level.

"It is not a matter of qualifications," she said, "but of whether the white parents are emotionally ready to send their children to negro teachers; whether the children would submit themselves to the discipline of a negro whom they have been taught to regard as inferior; and whether the negroes themselves are psychologically ready to assume equal status."

"For so many generations," she said, "the negro of the South has turned to the whites for help, for directions, that I predict it will be another generation before they can feel at home with the whites on an equal basis."

While time may solve the psychological problems of adjustments, Miss Ross felt that the physiological problems were another thing.

"The Communists have said that there are only three ways to deal with minorities," she said. "They say that you must kill them off, isolate them, or assimilate them. The physiological progress of assimilation are not ones which either negro or white like to think about. In the north the process of assimilation is gradually taking place. In the deep south, however, there are no graduations of color and of mixed bloods but black and white. That will continue to be a problem."

"Having gained equality, what then?" she asked, and said that this was a question which faces both the North and the South. Even in the North, she charged, the educated negro is still very often confined to menial positions, below those which his ability and education should command.

"As a matter of fact, if we would stop talking about the North and the South as two separate countries and realize that we are all alike and that we share the same problems in lesser or greater degree, we'd all progress much faster," she said.

"I have gone to school in the North, and I have found that people think alike and feel alike. Northerners moving into the South have found that they like us and we like them."

"Talking about differences, whether of localities or of race, merely emphasize those differences."

"Less self-conscious talk about equality and more acceptance in action on the individual level would go far to produce that equality we all strive for."

Regional Level Campaign For Elimination Of Segregation Is Started In Affected Territory

Atlanta (AP)—A local community level campaign for early elimination of public school segregation was launched by the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People here yesterday.

Branches in all affected areas were instructed to petition local school boards for immediate ending of racial separation in schools, and to offer assistance in working out problems.

Representatives of chapters in 18 states having mandatory segregation made plans to carry the campaign to the local school boards at a two-day session here.

The new strategy was announced in an "Atlanta declaration" read at a morning news conference.

Possible opposition by some of the more outspoken foes of non-segregation was mentioned only briefly.

But at an afternoon meeting, the veteran NAACP leader, Executive Secretary Walter White called Govs. Herman Talmadge of Georgia and James F. Byrnes of South Carolina "the two most pathetic figures in American life today... in their frustration and bitterness."

He declared Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga) had forfeited his presidential ambitions and supplied propaganda to Russia.

White also was critical of the "obscenity of the struggle for power of the junior senator from Wisconsin, aided and financed by Texas oil millionaires and other reactionaries."

White said "our next major job is to pierce and destroy the Iron Curtain of the Ghetto" and added until that is done full benefit of the Supreme Court decision against segregation will not be achieved.

While last Monday's U. S. Supreme Court decision merely announced that public school segregation is illegal and delayed its final decree, deliberations of the NAACP representatives here were on the assumption that the major barrier had been removed.

The Atlanta declaration recognized that "school officials will have certain administrative problems in transferring from a segregated to a non-segregated system."

But it added "we will resist the use of any tactics contrived for the sole purpose of delaying desegregation."

The declaration called for integration at all levels, including teacher assignments, and urged federal aid for education.

But lest its temperate language be misunderstood, the declaration concluded, "We here rededicate ourselves to the removal of all racial segregation in public education and reiterate our determination to achieve this goal without compromise of principle."

Twelve Vehicles Involved In Seven Accidents In Poconos

Three Injured, Damage $3,000 In Mishaps

Twelve vehicles were involved in seven accidents in Monroe County over the weekend. Damages totaled about $3,000 and three men were slightly hurt. (See editorial, Page 4).

Four of the accidents were in the Stroudsburg area, patrolled by Stroudsburg State police.

Two of the accidents resulted from highway repair work on Route 115 between Fern Ridge and Effort.

The most serious of the latter involved the car of Hyman Lurie, 46, Plainfield, N. J., pharmacist who was going north. Fern Ridge troopers said Lurie failed to see the section of the highway which had been dug up for re-filling.

His car plunged into the 18-inch-deep excavation, ripped the bottom parts. Four tires blew out. Then the vehicle was deflected by a rock, and into the path of a south-bound sedan operated by Russell C. Gower, 27, Long Pond laborer.

Police said the two men escaped injury. Damages were $1,000 to the pharmacist's car and $50 to the other auto.

Damages of $200 were caused two miles south of Fern Ridge when the car of Don Schappert, 22, Wilkes-Barre, hit a similar excavation in the highway at 8 p.m. Friday.

Troopers said it was raining at the time. Schappert was going south on Route 115. A passenger, Don Murphy, 25, Brooklyn, N. Y., suffered face cuts.

Gustaves K. Focke, 82, East Stroudsburg RD3, escaped hurt when his car collided with one operated by Margaret L. K. Snyder, 24, of 1002 W. Main St., Stroudsburg. Stroudsburg troopers said the accident occurred on Route 209 two miles east of East Stroudsburg at 6:40 p.m. Saturday.

The cars collided in about the center of the highway, police said. Damages totaled $550.

A car ran off Route 611 at 4:30 p.m. Saturday near Bartonville and hit a drain pipe, then an embankment. Driver Ernest Bago, 33, Pen Argyl, suffered a cut nose. Stroudsburg troopers said. Damages were estimated at $300.

A collision on Route 209 three miles west of Stroudsburg resulted at 3:50 p.m. Saturday when a car attempted to pass a truck.

Trying to pass the truck was Harold L. Bean, Coopersburg, Pa., driving toward Stroudsburg. State police said. Mike Honkus of Dover, N. J., said he saw the car coming at him and pulled off the highway. Bean's car braked, but skidded and struck the other auto, police said. Damages were estimated at $100.

A news delivery truck collided with a meat truck three miles east of East Stroudsburg at 6:30 a.m. Saturday. One man was injured.

Stroudsburg State police said Myron Ehrlich, 34, of 16 S. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, suffered possible rib fractures. His meat truck was driven across the highway and into a telephone pole, according to police.

Driver of the Tri-State News delivery truck was Albert Raughley, 23, of 62 Ananook St., East Stroudsburg, police said.

The accident occurred when the news truck pulled out of a gas station onto Route 209, and collided with the meat truck. Damages totaled $600.

A car operated by John Ruehlman, about 40, of Pocono Summit, was struck in the rear by a tractor-trailer at 10:20 p.m. Saturday in Mount Pocono.

Officer Kenneth Miller of that borough said the truck was operated by Harold Roberts, James-town, N. Y. Ruehlman was halted on Route 611 facing north. He was waiting for south-bound traffic to pass in order to turn left onto Route 615 when the truck hit his car. There were no injuries. Damages were estimated at $100.

Language Deficiencies, Art Of Criticism Are Problems, Speaker Advises Graduates

Deficiencies in language, the art of criticism and modern religion formed the basis for Dr. John Robbins Hart's baccalaureate sermon to State Teachers College seniors yesterday.

Speaking to a near-capacity audience in the college auditorium, Dr. Hart said:

"The world has always had phases of religion. What it needs is quality of religion."

This emphasis on religious "quality" rather than "quantity" should be paralleled by increased attention to the arts of language—communication and criticism, the speaker indicated.

Dr. Hart—who is now vice-chairman of the Speaker's Research Bureau of the United Nations and rector of Washington Memorial Chapel, Valley Forge—told the graduating seniors:

"On personal analysis charts today... language ability stands very high. People want those who speak clearly and think clearly."

Ability to express thoughts is a "very practical" attribute in all phases of modern life, including business, Dr. Hart continued. One of the best arguments in support of this tenet, he went on is that "we all love the beautiful writings of those who have cultivated this art of expression."

In these writings, he said, "the right word has been known and chosen and used in just the right way."

Turning to criticism, Dr. Hart noted that the word is "misused... because we think it is destructive and negative (and) we ask people to be constructive. When the art teacher looks at the picture he criticizes both the good and the bad."

"There are so many things going wrong today (but) they can be turned back and made better if we know how to say: This is wrong. It needs to be done this way," he continued.

The critic does not "stand as one superior," he continued. "We include ourselves and our sins in talking with another person. We want to show him we care about his entire life—the total summation of his life in which this fault (which we criticize) takes its proportionate place."

"Let us learn how to give good criticism" in language which will be easily understood and inclusive of both faults and merits, Dr. Hart said.

Too many times, he declared, "we postpone (our communication with others) until it is too late." He urged the seniors to be willing to "count" themselves "in when things go wrong."

To do this, he suggested, all persons must cultivate a "capacity for tragedy"—the ability to recognize the needs of others in times of trouble and to be ready to give assistance through language and understanding.

The inability to express the precise meaning of the things which many persons need feel to be said may be in large part responsible for some of the "national and international troubles which arise all the time," Dr. Hart pointed out.

In matters of "controversy," he said, "so often their expression is so poor that instead of helping (solve) the controversy they make it so much worse. If they knew the right word, the right inflection, it would help."

Another major cause of misunderstanding, he indicated, is the modern practice by national leaders who allow their speeches to be ghost-written, "then get up and deliver them without sincerity."

He cited, as an example, a well-known State governor who made a speech in London, then, in response to a relevant question from the floor replied: "Well, sir, I'd never seen this speech until I reached London. It was sent to me by air and I know nothing about the subject you've raised."

Such incidents, the speaker indicated, do little for international understanding or U. S. prestige abroad.

Although he urged the graduates to learn the art of language well, Dr. Hart also reminded them of the values of silence: "Silence is a central part of real expression."

"Our Lord used very few words to give us his message. Twenty-five pages of an ordinary book would cover all he said," Dr. Hart continued. "But it was left to disciples to interpret His message."

In closing, Dr. Hart turned to the Psalms of David.

"David in the psalms, said: My tongue is the pen of a ready writer. This word needs many such pens and tongues."

"This is my wish and prayer: That you will let the heart and mind combine to speak the truth in love," he concluded. "And that you shall be good students forever."

Scripture lesson for the baccalaureate was given by Dr. Joseph F. Noonan, college president, who chose the 13th chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, which ends:

"... Faith, hope and love... these three. But the greatest of these is love."

Burglars Steal $140 At Car Lot

Burglars stole a money bag containing $140 from the office at Townsend Motors, 325 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, early yesterday.

East Stroudsburg police chief Arthur Swink said the burglary was discovered by the operator, R. O. Townsend, about 8:20 a.m. when he opened the station for the day.

The chief said the burglars used a screwdriver to pry open the door on the side of the building facing King St. The thieves went through the washroom and into the office.

There they kicked the door off a soft drink machine. Inside was the bag of money. Nothing else in the office or station was touched. Chief Swink set the probable time of the burglary as between 1 a.m. and 2:30 a.m.

Former Hitler Generals In Police Force

Washington (AP)—Former Hitler generals and other high officers, congressional students said yesterday, are turning up in the uniform of Soviet-controlled East Germany's police force.

A survey published by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee also cited what it said were resemblances to methods of the Nazi regime in East Germany's labor and youth policies.

The survey, prepared by Library of Congress specialists, concluded that East German workers and housewives would provide the real cadres of continued resistance to Soviet domination and that integration of West Germany into a European community could intensify such resistance.

Dr. L. R. Furlong, Cresco, will be out of his office from May 16 to 26, inclusive.—Adv.

Lohmann Is Absolved By Jury

Milford—Game Protector John H. Lohmann was absolved by a jury Saturday in a $40,000 suit filed by Bushkill tavern operator Arthur W. Garis.

The jury deliberated about an hour before returning at 9 p.m. to announce its verdict in favor of defendant Lohmann.

Lohmann was represented by Sidney L. Krawitz of Milford and Charles R. Bensinger, Jr., of Stroudsburg. Garis was counselled by Eli T. Connors III of Port Jervis, and Forrest R. Mervine, Stroudsburg.

Counsel for both plaintiff and defendant had wound up final arguments before supper. The jury was sent out to eat. After supper, President Judge Fred W. Davis charged the jury for about an hour.

The suit arose from an argument which occurred in the office of Justice of the Peace Wells Van Campen of Milford in January 1953. Garis charged false arrest and assault and battery. Lohmann had contended that Garis illegally lent a doe license to another man.

tention to this film in Wall Street. They spent a lot of time in its staging. The premiere of the film was in the center of the Ku Klux Klan country, Atlanta, Georgia. It was a particularly reactionary film about the Civil War in the United States."

The paper accused the American motion picture industry of waging a war against Negroes and other minority groups in the United States in other films, too.

Driver Examinations

Do we wish to pay for our motoring with blood or money?

This is a question we may have to face soon, according to results of a recent survey in Detroit.

Traffic experts long have known that a small percentage of drivers have far more than their share of the crashes. Why? To find out, Detroit psychiatrists made a special examination of 10,000 of Detroit's worst drivers.

The results showed 100 could be certified as insane, 850 were feeble-minded and 1000 had records of mental treatment. Most of the 10,000 were failures in their occupations.

The answer to a lot of our crash headaches, the experts agreed, was to get these motor maniacs off the road.

Traffic officials in various parts of the country periodically have raised the idea of giving examinations, at intervals, to all licensed drivers.

Officials usually agree that it would be a good program but have shied away at what they call the "prohibitive cost."

We are paying now at the rate of 38,000 dead, some 1,350,000 injured and billions in dollars per year for our crashes.

This program being rejected because of its cost may turn out to be cheap at any price.

Mergenthaler

The line of type you are looking at now was composed in a matter of seconds, thanks to the inventive genius of a man born 100 years ago this week.

His name was Ottmer Mergenthaler. He was a German emigrant who landed in Baltimore in 1872 with $30 in his pocket and wheels in his head. He invented the Linotype, a typesetting machine which revolutionized printing.

Before Mergenthaler, every letter had to be picked up by hand and placed in position to form the words. Mergenthaler's device not only picks out the letters but molds them into type metal and snugs them into line the exact width of the desired column.

No one can begin to imagine how many more millions of words have been loosed upon a defenseless world since the Linotype speeded the process. It can set them all—beautifully and imperishably—as fast as a man can turn them out, from the Gettysburg address to a Communist manifesto.

Sometimes it's a pity, but most of the time, thank goodness, it's for enlightenment and therefore a blessing for mankind. To that end, we hail the brilliant clockmaker's apprentice who finally put the Gutenberg show on the road.

30 Years the G-Man

Thirty years ago this week, J. Edgar Hoover took over the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

It was a rag-tag outfit then. But long since it has become one of the most respected agencies of government. It certainly is the best disciplined, the freest of outside interference and the equal or better of others in its devotion to its tasks.

Mr. Hoover has been FBI chief under five presidents. Despite the changing political hues of succeeding administrations, the FBI steadily has grown in effectiveness and public confidence. The secret is Mr. Hoover's rigorous objectivity.

As an agency of crime detection, the FBI has become a model of world-wide reputation. As the mainstay of the constant campaign against Communist infiltration, the Bureau has assumed an even more vital role.

It is indispensable to the national security—and Mr. Hoover made it so.

The site of the city of Cleveland was laid out in 1796 by Gen. Moses Cleveland. The city was named after him.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

The Real News Newsreel

As ever, say they are glad the Supreme Court has ruled that the segregation of the McCarthy committee and the President's top-level advisers is unfair . . . The week's postponement of the Potomac TV show will give all members of the subcommittee a chance to get blue shirts and find a substitute line for "I'm just a poor country lawyer."

The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to include within the Social Security bracket all once-a-week workers such as part-time maids, gardeners and handymen . . . This can put the . . . Saratoga will raise admission prices this summer, passing on the entire Saratoga County 15 per cent tax to the cash customers and again raising the question why racing people are so careful about how much weight a horse carries and so indifferent to how much a customer carries

The week's picture of Ike and Secretary Stevens in almost the embrace of the year has McCarthy supporters boiling . . .

They hold that since Stevens is a principal in the big case, and under many accusations from the other side, the action amounted to a "clipped picture" with the "clipping" directed at Joe and his aides . . . Critics of the White House ban on details of the January 21st meeting say that Ike used a putter when a niblick would have done, broke the rules by rushing through a foursome without warning, stepped on Joe's golf ball and that, when his caddy was asked for the score, he issued a directive "shutting all the TRAPS."

We are still puzzled by the presence of Henry Cabot Lodge at the big top-level session . . . Henry is our top U. N. official . . . What did U. N. have to do with the Pentagon-McCarthy war? . . .

We dismiss the rumor that Mr. Lodge wanted Roy Cohn declared a protectorate and favored putting McCarthy under a cease-fire commission . . . (Elmer Twitchell says he thinks Lodge wanted the United Nations to seat Private Schine, thus rallying to the Free World all people who don't like

KP duty . . . This would embrace millions . . . Fred Walker, dead at 68, was the father of "Cinema" and he endured a battle for years before getting anywhere with the idea . . . Wasn't that Perle Mosta who got a seat directly behind Senator Mundt in direct TV camera range on this week's last telecast of 'All's Video on the Potomac'? . . . Looks like "the long furrow" is now in the foreheads of everybody involved in the act? . . . Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, on a visit to America, must chuckle up his sleeve as he reviews the disastrous world scene . . . warning of what would happen if dictators like Mussolini and Hitler weren't stopped . . . His prophecy has come out 100 per cent right so far . . . "The Panama Game" owes its success more to the terrific speed of the dancers, and the gusto of the songs than to the book . . . "Costello Fined $30,000" — headline . . . Payable in quarters? . . .

Robert S. Allen Reports

Kookhlov Reports Beria Was Poisoned As Traitor

Washington — Lavrenti Beria was liquidated months before the Kremlin announced his execution as a traitor.

He was done away with by poisoning.

The murder took place a few hours after the head of the Soviet secret police was trapped in a Moscow prison by an elaborately-staged plot.

He was confronted and condemned there by Premier Malenkov.

Beria was slain several days before he was secretly set to do the same thing to his rivals. They beat him to the punch, and killed him immediately. The ferocious race for supremacy was that close and they took no chances.

This is the sensational account of the mystery-drenched Kremlin struggle that the Senate Internal Security Committee has gotten from Captain Nikolai Kookhlov.

He is the Russian agent who defected in Berlin last month rather than carry out a mission to assassinate the anti-Communist leader of Russian refugees in Germany. Kookhlov, who indicated he had been a "Beria man," was flown to Washington for interrogation by the Senate Committee.

The investigators have had a series of discussions with Kookhlov lasting many hours. Following are other disclosures he had made that can be reported.

Russia started work on the hydrogen bomb three-and-a-half years ago.

A number of West German police have secret Communist ties.

Certain Red agents personally known to Kookhlov are now operating either in the U. S. or Mexico.

The great mass of Russians are loyal to the existing regime. However, deep disaffection exists among various groups and they would revolt if they had arms and thought there was a fighting chance to succeed.

The Details—Kookhlov did not explain how Beria was poisoned.

He told the Committee the secret police despot was killed by his deputy and successor—Colonel General Sergei Nikiforovich Kruglov.

According to Kookhlov, following is what happened:

The Malenkov clique got wind that Beria was on the verge of poisoning on them to make himself the sole successor to Stalin.

The backing of top Red Army Marshals, who hated and feared Beria, was hurriedly negotiated and a Hollywood-type plot was set in motion to "eliminate" him forthwith.

The job of putting Beria on the spot was given to Kruglov, who had been one of Stalin's favorite purgers and had secretly lined up with Malenkov.

Beria was invited to a high military function. He attended, feeling safe because only general officers and officials of his own police were present. Upon leaving, Beria discovered his car wouldn't start. That had been arranged while his chauffeur had been lured away to partake of vodka and choice food.

At this moment, Kruglov appeared and offered to drive his chief to his residence. Beria asserted. That was the last seen of him.

Instead of being driven to his home, the police ruler was rushed to a Moscow prison that had been quietly garrisoned that night with trusted Red Army tank and command troops. There he was taken to a stark room and confronted with his erstwhile long-time associate and fellow Kremlin mogul—Georgi Malenkov.

Several hours later Beria was poisoned and died within minutes. His remains were cremated.

All the subsequent announcements, statements, edicts, etc., about charges against him as a spy and traitor, his alleged trial, death sentence and execution by a firing squad were phony. He had been expunged months before.

Captain Kookhlov, asked if he knew of any espionage agents in the U. S., thought for a long time and finally replied, through the interpreter, "Maybe."

"What do you mean by that," asked Senator Olin Johnston (D, S.C.).

The Russian defector explained that the Moscow agents he knew personally might be in this country or in Mexico; he wasn't certain.

He also told the Committee that he had served for a time in the American desk in the Soviet Foreign Office, and that he has operated in counter-intelligence, foreign-intelligence and domestic (police) intelligence. He stated his wife is still in Moscow and he has heard nothing from or about her since his defection.

Note: Some of the secret information Kookhlov has given intelligence authorities is very accurate; other data has failed to check out.

Hectic Scramble—An unusually turbulent senatorial battle is going on in normally placid New Hampshire.

Owing to the death of Senator Charles Tobey, one of the State's seats at stake, Senator Styles Bridges is seeking a full fourth term, and Senator Robert Upton wants to fill out the remaining two years of Tobey's term.

Bridges has no Republican opponent as yet. Two Democrats are fighting for the chance to tackle him in the election. One of them, Eugene Daniel, is suing a radio station on the charge it's keeping him off the air because of Bridges' pressure. The latter's opponents are also saying he's in poor health. Bridges was laid up with a laryngitis attack last winter, but beyond that he has shown no sign of sickness.

Upton was named to the Senate by Governor Hugh Gregg. But Gregg is now backing Norris Cotton, one of the state's two Representatives. Gregg explains his switch on the ground that he didn't think Upton wanted to stay in the Senate; that's why he named him. If that was so, Upton must have decided he likes Washington and wants to hold on to his Senate seat because he's battling strenuously for it.

Further complicating the involved situation is still another candidate. He is Wesley Powell, who ran against Tobey and was resoundingly defeated.

Powell is a protégé of Bridges; served ten years in his office. Powell also is an ardent supporter of Senator McCarthy and a strong advocate of the Bricker amendment that the Senate defeated to limit the President's authority in Foreign affairs.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Economic Side Of U. S. Foreign Policy Based On: "Do We Have True Allies?"

Robert E. Asher, until recently of the State Department, stated the broad objectives of the economic side of American Foreign Policy as follows:

"We want economic conditions in the free world which will attract peoples and governments toward the democratic system of political freedom, as opposed to totalitarian systems like Soviet communism."

That foreign aid had that design has been clear since the enunciation of the Marshall Plan at Harvard in 1947. This has cost the American taxpayer between $5,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 a year since then. The expenditures of these vast sums were supposed to bring us allies. In 1945, it can be said that its objectives have not been achieved. If anything, neutralism as between ourselves and Soviet Russia has been on the increase the world over, particularly among the countries we have aided. (In this connection, it ought not to be forgotten that our gifts to Soviet Russia during World War II came to at least $10,000,000,000.)

Gifts are one phase of the problem. Another is the increasing emphasis on tariff reduction and upon changes in customs procedures. This can be in practice even a greater gift than a credit under a program of aid. For instance, those funny little automobiles that are beginning to appear on our roads, made in Great Britain and now being sold freely in the United States, can provide Great Britain with a better trade balance. It is trade not aid. Selling at a lower price than American cars, these bantams can seriously affect the American automobile market because they are non-competitively manufactured. In fact, American capital is being exported to European countries to produce this commodity using low-wage labor and less favorable working conditions.

Senator George Malone heads a committee of the Senate which is investigating this particular problem, especially the relationship of American industry to war, should World War III occur. This investigation is of singular importance but has been overshadowed by a lot of nonsense.

Mr. Asher makes a further point which could involve this country in a peculiar share-the-wealth concept on an international scale. He said:

"We have a special interest in the economic strength of our partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and of the countries on the periphery of Soviet power. In the North Atlantic Treaty area we want economic conditions which will enable the NATO countries to devote a substantial part of their resources to the common military effort for as long as is necessary, without preventing improvements in their standards of living. In countries on the periphery of Soviet power we want to eliminate economic weaknesses that threaten political stability and invite Communist subversion."

Such a program is so enormous that it is hardly conceivable in practical terms. It would start with the stabilization of the currency of each of these countries as the only way to protect the economy of a country is to stabilize its currency and to increase values. The program is, of course, sound in principle even though too costly if the NATO countries are true allies. It is cheaper than having another war, which would cost at least as much as World War II, which was more than $300,000,000,000 plus about $100,000,000,000 for aid since.

But the predicate of the problem is "Do we have true allies?" At the Geneva Conference it does not appear that the principal countries are true allies in the sense that there is any common program to which they all subscribe. It might even be said that they are our allies concerning Europe but not concerning Asia. But the two cannot be separated because they are one. This we and the European allies should have learned when Russia incorporated China in the Soviet Universal State while we were fussing over the Berlin Airlift, which was a diversion. The danger then is that we expend our wealth to no advantage.

If Mr. Asher's program is official policy, it is necessary to discover what such a program will cost the American taxpayer, how it will affect our own economy, and how many years it is to last. It is not a program to run on a year by year basis. If it is continuous for decades, it can wreck the American economy by increasing public debt and keeping taxes at punitive rates, which they now are.

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

Whatever else you may do with yourself in the course of a lifetime, never lose your confidence in yourself.

Once self-confidence is lost every possibility of happiness is lost.

Self-confidence, combined with character and ability is bound to lead you to success.

It might not hurt you to have a little of the self-assurance which Charles Dickens ascribed so vividly to Simon Tappertit, the ambitious apprentice to Gabriel Varden in "Barnaby Rudge."

You may remember that Tappertit was the very embodiment of self-confidence and aplomb. He had so much self-confidence that finally he successfully went after the heart and hand of Dolly Varden, Gabriel's daughter.

On the other hand, the Lord save you from the self-assurance of Jonathan Edwards, the noted preacher of "hellfire and damnation," who lived in the very early 18th century.

He was so sure of himself and of everything in which he believed that he published a list of names of people suspected of reading improper books. He was so censorious of others that he became exceedingly unpopular for his strict principles and smug self-assurance.

I think we could stand a bit less of Edwardianism and a lot more optimism and enthusiasm.

There is a big difference between self-confidence and pig-headedness.

Self-confidence creates the ability to throw off temporary setbacks or defeats and to triumph over them. Without self-confidence, one sinks into the mire of emotional depression and permanent defeat.

The stenographer, who fails to get the promotion to the job of president's secretary, sulks as a result of it, and whose work consequently deteriorates, is bound to get fired, sooner or later. The proper attitude is to buck up and try again.

All of us have our ups and downs. Those who get up after a down do not get depressed or assume an "Oh, what's the use?" attitude. They have the sportsman's ability to be a good temporary loser and cheerfully and self-confidently to try again.

When panicked, one cannot do one's best work. One cannot think clearly and surely, one loses the will to fight. And, with few exceptions, all success has to be fought for.

Perhaps one of the greatest killers of self-confidence is the inability to make an honest self-appraisal of one's abilities. We are not all equally equipped. We cannot all be the "top banana."

Don't base your self-appraisal of success, or the lack of it, on money alone. If you are doing a good job in your chosen field, if you are reasonably content and if you have self-confidence, then, if you are a $60 a week bookkeeper, a secretary or an efficient shop worker, you have just as much right to be proud of yourself as your boss, who may make $600 a week.

One friend listened to another explain his domestic difficulties, most of which resulted from staying out nights. He said that he had spent all Saturday oiling the garage door to keep it quiet, had graphite in all the house locks and had perfected a system for silent home-coming, but there she was, no matter what time—blazing away! He got mad, spoiled his whole night and felt terrible the next day—and this was one of those days.

The patient friend explained that the "silent system" was wrong. He said, "Drunk or sober, no matter what time, I slam into the driveway with the horn blowing and brakes shrieking, bump into the back of the garage, slam the doors with all my might, fall into the front door of the house and slam that, too. Then I stumble upstairs, kick my shoes around, get my clothes off and step into the bedroom, turn on all the lights and yell, 'Move over, dear, here I come!' Nine times out of ten she pretends she's asleep."

Alpha Class Reorganized At Salem Church

Poccano Lake—A reorganization meeting of the Alpha Bible Class, of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church Sunday School, which discontinued its regular meetings in 1941 was held at the home of Mrs. Frederick Harold Jr. on April 26.

Advancing age, ill health and death cut into the number of those attending, and others moved away. For the past 13 years, special meetings have been called for special purposes, and several of the members have continued their work through the years. They have made quilts to be sent to the Bethany Orphans Home, have sent boxes at Christmas time, collected mission money for Lepers, the American Bible Society or other projects, at their Sunday morning meetings.

Five new members joined the class at the beginning of the year, Mrs. John Werkheiser, Mrs. Harry Gibbons, Mrs. Charles Kinsley, Mrs. Dora Field and Mrs. Frederick Harold Jr. Mrs. Werkheiser has taken over the teaching of the class following Mrs. Floyd Miller, who moved away, successor to Mrs. Harley P. Henning who taught the class for many years.

Jr. Women End Year In 'Night Out'

Speaking to the husbands of the members of the Junior Women's Club at the annual banquet held on Friday night at Onawa Lodge, Mountainhome, Mrs. John Sibley, retiring president, told them:

"You men think that your wives belong to the Junior Women's Club for only one reason: a night out. And you're right."

However she pointed out that the club also serves other functions. Their welfare work in the community during the past year amounted to almost $1,300, she said, and paid tribute to Mrs. Chester Miller, welfare chairman for her work. In addition, she said, the club tries to provide information so that its members may form a more intelligent opinion on national and world events, and to provide inspiration to become better mothers, homemakers and citizens.

The banquet, however, came under the category of "a night out," and the program included music by a "mixed-up quartet" composed of Lois Payne, Ruth Sibley, Robert Altomose and William Gorton, who sang several numbers.

Mrs. Warren Mikels, new president of the Junior Women's Club, presented Mrs. Sibley with a gift of appreciation from the club. Mrs. Donald Gilpin, who has served as Senior Advisor of the group, also was presented with a gift. Mrs. Richard Frederberg, past president, presented Mrs. Sibley with a scrapbook of her year as president.

Guests at the dinner included Mrs. Foster Minnich, president of the Monroe County Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mr. Minnich; Mrs. Harry Shinnin, past county president; Mrs. Walter Caulfield, president of Stroudsburg Woman's Club, and Dr. Caulfield; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gilpin and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Westbrook.

Dancing followed the dinner.

AAUW Board Meeting

As a child I had one stock question that was invariably put to everyone entering our house. "Tell me," I would demand, "the funniest thing that ever happened to you." The result was often disappointing. But occasionally there would be some hilarious tale of misunderstanding or embarrassment so amusing it can still inspire a chuckle.

I suppose it was only a sign of approaching second childhood when, as I nibbled at my lunch this past Saturday, along with some girls from our credit office, I asked if they ever have any amusing incidents in their jobs.

They exchanged wary glances, and Agnes Holdorf suggested, "Maybe we'd better watch ourselves, Barbara — we may find ourselves in the newspaper." Thoughtfully they finished their submarine buns. "Of course," Agnes admitted, "it's never dull. Funny things are always happening, particularly a few days after the bills go out. You'd be surprised how many people forget the things they've bought. Like the woman with the $12.50 comb. Remember, Barbara?"

Barbara nodded, and Agnes went on to tell of the perplexed customer who opened her monthly statement to find that she had purchased "one comb," priced as mentioned above. The very idea appalled her. Imagine spending that much for one comb! She never had and never would, and what were we going to say to that? "It was during a busy season, as I recall," Gladys explained, "and the bills had been posted in a rush. But the customer was right. What she had really purchased was a combination from our corset department, and someone had abbreviated it. No wonder our bill got in her hair!"

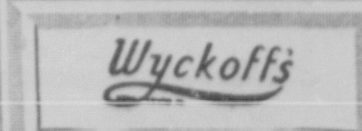

Sometimes mistakes are caused by careless handwriting. That was the case, when a customer called up to protest being charged with a "dog tensor."

"I do not own a dog," she said vehemently, "and never have owned one. Even if I did, I most certainly wouldn't tease it, so kindly deduct that amount from my bill." She too was right — it was the writing that was wrong. Careful examination of the charge slip showed that she had purchased "I do tissues."

Barbara Van Vliet admits to having her troubles too, particularly in the matter of time payments. "Sometimes the customers do not understand the terms we use—like 'carrying charge', for instance. One young man was quite indignant when he saw this added to his time payment. 'For three dollars I'll do my own carrying, miss', he insisted, and nothing I said made a bit of difference. Agnes is right when she says there aren't many dull moments."

Just then one of our saleswomen wandered in and flopped down upon the nearest chair. "People," she groaned, "she kicked off her shoes. 'Would you like to hear some of the things that happened to me this morning?'"

Would I? Why did she bother to ask? Didn't she hear my ears flapping?

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Any picture you might have of Business and Professional Women treading purposefully around in man-tailored suits and sensible shoes should be quite dispelled by one glance at the picture above.

And if you had stopped in at their convention, you'd have been even more fascinated. They came in all shapes, sizes and ages, and the only way you could tell they were business women was because their meetings ran right on schedule.

And for that, Joyce Rutt and her local committee can take up to themselves plenty of credit. They only need to believe half the nice things the delegates said about them to go walking around on air for a week. Actually it will more probably be bedroom slippers—they did run themselves ragged.

One of the most fascinating guests at the convention was Miss Ella V. Ross. I must confess I was feeling a little brash to be asking a Southern gentlewoman about such a controversial issue as the Supreme Court decision.

But I shouldn't have worried. There was one of those instant sparks that sometimes starts a conversation between total strangers by spontaneous combustion, it seems. The spark in this case I think was her answer to a question about her journey.

"I swung in on a graveyine," she said, which is a pretty graphic way of condensing plane, train, bus and private car which brought her to the convention.

Anyway the sparks fell on receptive material because I was already keyed up by the Junior Woman's Club party we'd just left. That "mixed-up" quartette and the very gay dinner set up a gay mood. Now if we can just jangle down to wash-day without jarring, we're all set.

New Feature For Mowers By Jacobsen

There's something new in Jacobsen rotary mowers this Spring.

It's Jacobsen's new suction lift rotor, which uses four cutting knives to double the cutting frequency of conventional bar-type mowers.

The new Jacobsen line is now on display at G. W. Sebring & Son, 1103 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg. Here you can see Jacobsen's unique suction lift rotor demonstrated.

The four blades are pitched to just the right degree to provide a lifting action which assures a smooth cut on long, tender grass. The grass is actually drawn in from the edges of the mower for trimming purposes.

The blades will turn when striking an object that cannot be cut—this is a safety factor to the operator as well as to the mower itself.

One of the most popular rotary mowers at Sebring's is the Jacobsen 18-inch rotary with the new suction lift rotor.

For all-round cutting ability and ease of handling, the Jacobsen 18-inch manually-operated rotary is tops in the small rotary class. The Jacobsen engine has plenty of power to slice right through heavy spring growths. The new suction lift chops grass into fine particles—no follow-up raking necessary.

Takes Work Away From Customer

You've never seen such customer service in this area before when it comes to buying carpet.

Last week a completely new idea in carpet merchandising was put into operation at the A. C. Miller Furniture store, Main & Fourth St.

Developed by the manufacturers of Lees carpet, it takes all the work out of choosing carpet and makes it a pleasure. Hundreds of sample patterns are on display. Supposing you choose a pattern and color from the Lees Carpet Selector. A call is immediately put through to the Lees warehouse in Philadelphia in order to verify the store's inventory records and make sure the customer's choice is shipped as soon as possible.

Within three days the order will arrive at Miller's. It doesn't matter whether the order is for broadloom or room size rugs; service is still just as prompt.

The customer then may take delivery of the carpet, or, if she wishes, A. C. Miller's own carpet craftsmen will handle the complete installation for her.

To make this business of carpet selection even more easy and pleasant for the customer, A. C. Miller's will provide you with an attractively illustrated booklet on "What Goes With What?"

It answers all your problems on how to start your home decorating, how to plan your new home, how to give your home a new look.

Mrs. Kate J. Sittler Celebrating 100th Birthday Today With Many Official Honors

Mount Pocono — Mrs. Kate J. Sittler will have enough birthday cards, flowers and cakes for a full-sized regiment today.

The occasion is her 100th birthday. She's the only Monroe County resident currently alive for a hundred years, according to existing records.

In addition to the presents, cards and cakes from relatives and friends, Mrs. Sittler got a fair share of official recognition Saturday. During the afternoon, Dr. James G. Kitchen, president of the Monroe County Medical Society, showed up at the Sittler home in Mount Pocono.

Dr. Kitchen's visit was a gesture of commendation from the Society. He presented a certificate to Mrs. Sittler which is solely designed to recognize those persons who have reached 100 years.

For Mrs. Sittler the past century has encompassed a lot of activity. She has lived through war and peace, economic booms and busts and that common modern phenomenon "the cold war."

She was born in Rothrockville, Pa., on May 24, 1854, daughter of David and Catherine Gross. In 1889 she married the late George B. Sittler.

While still a young child, living with her parents at Macungie near Allentown, an incident occurred which has left an indelible stamp on Mrs. Sittler's memory.

It was the time of the Civil War. Union troops, being transported from the North to Southern battlefields, were carried by train through Macungie.

"The Macungie station was often used as a 'watering stop' for the troop trains. During one of these stops, as Mrs. Sittler recalls it, Yankee troops left the train and wandered through the surrounding countryside.

One of the properties through which they passed was the Gross home. Kate was still a young child. But she remembers clearly that the Union soldiers "stole all of the chickens" from her parents' home; took them away and "later scalded the chickens with steam from the boiler of the train."

After her marriage to the late Mr. Sittler, she lived for several years in Monterey. The family then moved to Kutztown where she became an early member of the Trinity Lutheran Church there. It was in Kutztown that her husband died.

She now lives with her son, George and his wife in Mount Pocono; has lived there for several years. In addition to George, another son, John, of New Tripoli, is also living. Three other children have died.

Her other direct descendants are seven grandchildren, 36 great-grandchildren and nine great-great-grandchildren — numbering 51, counting her two sons.

Always an active woman, her hobbies, until recently have been "housekeeping, crocheting, reading newspapers and magazines," according to her son.

Mrs. Sittler is in "fairly good health," her son says and is well pleased with the many congratulations she has received on the occasion of her 100th birthday anniversary.

Spiritual Guidance Essential

Kresgeville — Lack of spiritual guidance may ruin whatever success the individual attains, Rev. Adan Bohner told Polk graduates last night.

In baccalaureate services at the school, Rev. Bohner urged the seniors to remember that "no success has any guarantee of permanence" unless there is a spiritual element to protect it.

With all of man's technological advances, the minister said, it is now possible to "blast the world to pieces" unless a moral and spiritual quality prevents such actions.

The greatest task facing modern man as an individual, "in this spiritual direction," Rev. Bohner pointed out.

Rev. James Laubach gave the invocation and benediction at the baccalaureate services. Musical numbers included "The Lord's Prayer" by Betty George; "Gloria Patri" and "O Mighty Land" by the choir.

"Holy, Holy, Holy" served as the processional; "Onward Christian Soldiers" was the recessional.

"Paris '90" opens the season on June 14.

Mrs. Stevens said last night that Ezra Stone, who has worked with Miss Truman on much of her TV career, will be imported to direct the play at the local theater.

Reeders Wins Pitcher's Duel From Saylorburg

Reeders—George Hartshorn outlasted Bob Bonser in a brilliant pitching duel here yesterday as Reeders eked out a 2-1 decision over Saylorburg.

Don Singer singled, stole second, went to third on a wild throw and scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh on a single by Les Woodling.

Hartshorn fanned Les Lessig with the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth.

Both teams accounted for four safeties.

Martins Creek Protects Record Against Pocono A. C.

Unearned Runs Prove Fatal To Home Club

Martins Creek picked up four unearned runs yesterday to down Pocono A. C. 4-1 at Gordon Giffels field. The win was the fourth of the present campaign without a setback for the Martins Creek club.

Pocono A. C. has now lost two of its three outings to date.

Martins Creek, although held to three hits by Bill "Bump" Metzger, took advantage of five Pocono A. C. errors to do the damage.

The visiting club pushed one run into paydirt in the first frame when Gino DeFelice walked and was sacrificed to second by Gus Kovalsky.

Dick Pritchard was safe on Art Schiare's error at third and DeFelice scored.

Metzger held the power-packed Martins Creek organization in check until the fifth. Bob Weiss, the winning pitcher, was safe on Bob Melman's error and DeFelice was waved to first base after being hit by a pitched ball.

Kovalsky was safe on an error by Randy Morris to load the bases.

Pritchard grounded to Schiare who forced Pritchard at the plate. Dick Bethman flied deep to Byrd Stouff and DeFelice scored after the catch. Manager Olympio "Patch" Pacholi popped out to Morris to end the inning.

Two More

Martins Creek scored its third and fourth runs in the seventh frame. Weiss flied out to Al Adelmann to open the inning and DeFelice followed with a walk.

DeFelice was safe on Lyle Krall's error and Bethman scored both runners with a ringing double to left center. Pacholi ended the frame by flying out to Adelmann.

Pocono A. C. averted a shutout in the sixth. Metzger struck a big blow in his own behalf by doubling to left. Schiare grounded out, Pritchard to Pacholi.

Melman was safe on Bethman's error and Morris doubled to left scoring Metzger and sending Melman to third. Manager Bill Frear went down on strikes and Adelmann grounded out to end the rally.

ESSTC Closes Campaign With Favorable Nod

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College wound up its 1954 baseball season on a winning note on Saturday as the charges of Coach George Ockershausen inflicted a 6-1 loss on Lincoln University, on the Normal Hill field.

The contest was played before a large "Alumni Day" crowd.

ESSTC's victory was its seventh of the season to go with a total of five setbacks.

The Warriors wrapped the verdict up early by scoring five times in the second inning off Milt Corsey and coasting the remainder of the distance to a comparatively easy victory. Four Lincoln errors made the victory road much easier to travel.

Big Blow

Lyle Krall's home run, his third of the season, highlighted an inning in which the Warriors accounted for five hits and a stolen base.

There was no doubt about the outcome the remainder of the way as the Warriors substituted freely and picked up a sixth tally in the fourth round.

Lincoln scored its lone run in the sixth on two hits, a walk and a fielder's choice.

Cresco Man In Hospital After Beating

Three men were in county jail last night after being charged with beating a 73-year-old Cresco man.

The victim, Joseph Hardy, was reported in "fair" condition at East Stroudsburg General Hospital.

Charged with assault and battery are his sons, John and Elmer, and the sons' friend, Samuel VanWhy, a neighbor.

The hospital said the elderly Hardy was admitted at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. There has been no change in his condition since then.

The two sons and VanWhy were arrested on warrants issued by Justice of the Peace Henry Price, Cresco. They were taken in custody by Troopers James Horan and Homer Jones of the Mount Pocono substation.

State police said the arguments occurred at Joseph Hardy's house about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

VanWhy and the Hardy boys had been drinking throughout the day, police said. Elmer Hardy got into an argument with his father, police said. John then scuffled with the old man, authorities reported. The elderly man's wife was present at the time, police said.

Troopers said the father suffered cuts about the ears and scalp, and body bruises.

Hearing will be delayed until Joseph Hardy is well enough to attend, police said.

Answers to Questions ABOUT THE New Blue Shield Plan "B"

It will pay doctor bills in full for more people than ever before

Q: What is the principal difference between the new Plan "B" and the present plan (Plan "A")?

The new Plan B offers the same protection as the present plan. But it raises by 50% the income limits of families for which Blue Shield will pay doctor bills in full.

New Plan B pays Blue Shield Participating Doctors in full for services covered by your agreement if you have 2 or more dependents and yearly family income is $6000 or less (about $115 a week); if one dependent and $4500 (about $86.50 a week); if no dependents and $3000 (about $57.50 a week). Most Pennsylvania doctors are Blue Shield Participating Doctors.

If your income is higher than the limits noted above, the new Plan B will pay a larger portion of your doctor bills than any coverage previously offered by Blue Shield—up to $300 for certain operations. You benefit from this new plan regardless of income.

Q: Does new Plan B replace the present Blue Shield plan (Plan A)?

By no means. The Blue Shield present plan (Plan A) will continue to be offered. Many people may prefer it—particularly those with 2 dependents and a yearly family income of $4000 or less; one dependent and $3000; or no dependents and $2000. In those cases, Plan A pays Participating Doctors' bills in full.

Q: What does the new Plan B cost?

Rates for Plan B Medical-Surgical protection—the most complete protection—are just 35c to $1.35 a month more than rates for the present plan (Plan A). Rates for non-group members are slightly higher.

Q: When and how can you join Plan B?

Protection under the new Plan B will become available July 1.

If there is a Blue Shield group where you work: Arrangements can be made by your group to get complete information about the new Plan B.

If you are now a Blue Shield non-group member: You will be contacted by mail so that, if you wish, you may change your present coverage to Plan B coverage.

If you are not now a Blue Shield member: Write to the address below for information about how you can join.

Q: What surgical bills does Blue Shield cover?

You have your choice of two kinds of protection under either Plan A or Plan B—Surgical or Medical-Surgical.

Both of them cover surgical operations for the treatment of disease, injury, fracture or dislocation.

With Surgical protection, you and members of your family are covered when operations are performed while you are an inpatient in an accredited hospital.

With Medical-Surgical protection, however, you are covered no matter where the operations are performed—hospital, doctor's office, your home, anywhere.

Q: What medical bills does Blue Shield cover?

With Medical-Surgical protection under either new Plan B or the present Plan A, payments are made to your doctor for up to 70 days when you or members of your family are hospitalized and no surgery is necessary. One bedside consultation per hospital admission is covered, when necessary and requested by your doctor. Payment is also provided for X-ray treatment of certain cases and (for group members only) for some home and office doctor calls.

Q: What dental bills does Blue Shield cover?

Both Surgical and Medical-Surgical agreements provide for certain oral surgery for hospital inpatients.

Q: Does Blue Shield cover maternity bills?

With either Surgical or Medical-Surgical protection, child delivery is covered after 12 months' membership under a maternity agreement.

All the above doctor bills are covered in full if your income falls within the specified limits of the Blue Shield plan you select.

Q: Can anyone become a Blue Shield member?

Just about. If you join Blue Shield as a group member, there are no age limits. If you join as a non-group member, you must be under 66 and in good health. There are no other qualifications.

If you now have the Blue Shield present plan (Plan A), your membership will simply be transferred when you subscribe to the new Plan B.
